And he said, "Miss Polly, put her straight to bed"

Will you wake him?
No, not I - for if I do, he's sure to cry.

Bubbles, Bubbles, here and there,
What do you do up in the air?
Taking fairies from place to place,
Then disappearing without a trace?
Blowing bubbles is such fun!
Then counting them, one by one,
It would be fun to take a ride
And round the world, float and glide!

Bear went over the Mountain

The bear went over the mountain,
The bear went over the mountain,
The bear went over the mountain,
To see what he could see.
And all that he could see,
And all that he could see,
Was the other side of the mountain,
The other side of the mountain,
The other side of the mountain,
Was all that he could see.

The bear went over the river,

The Three Sheep

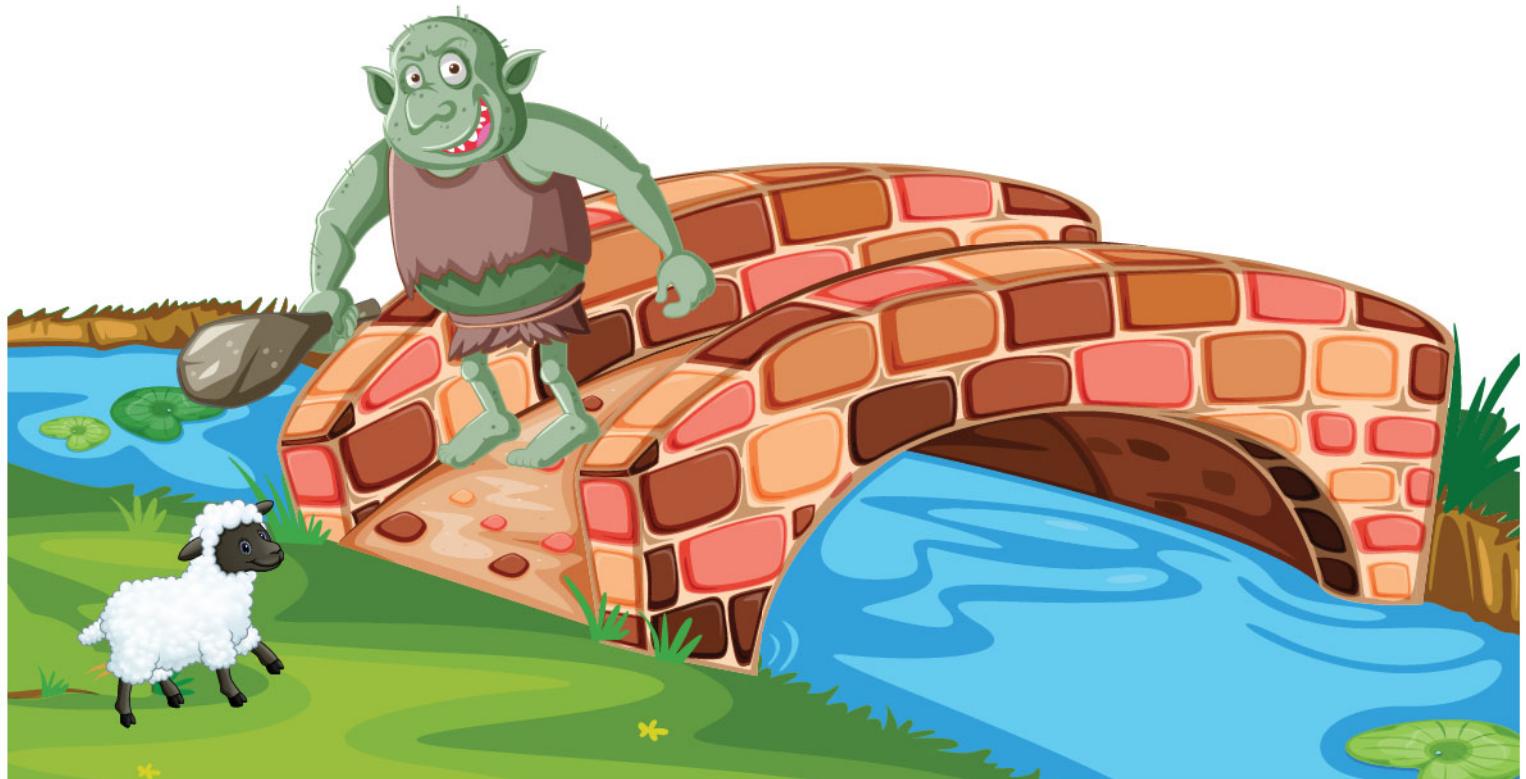

A long time ago, next to a river, there lived three sheep - Ben, Jen and Ken. Across the river there was a big hill.

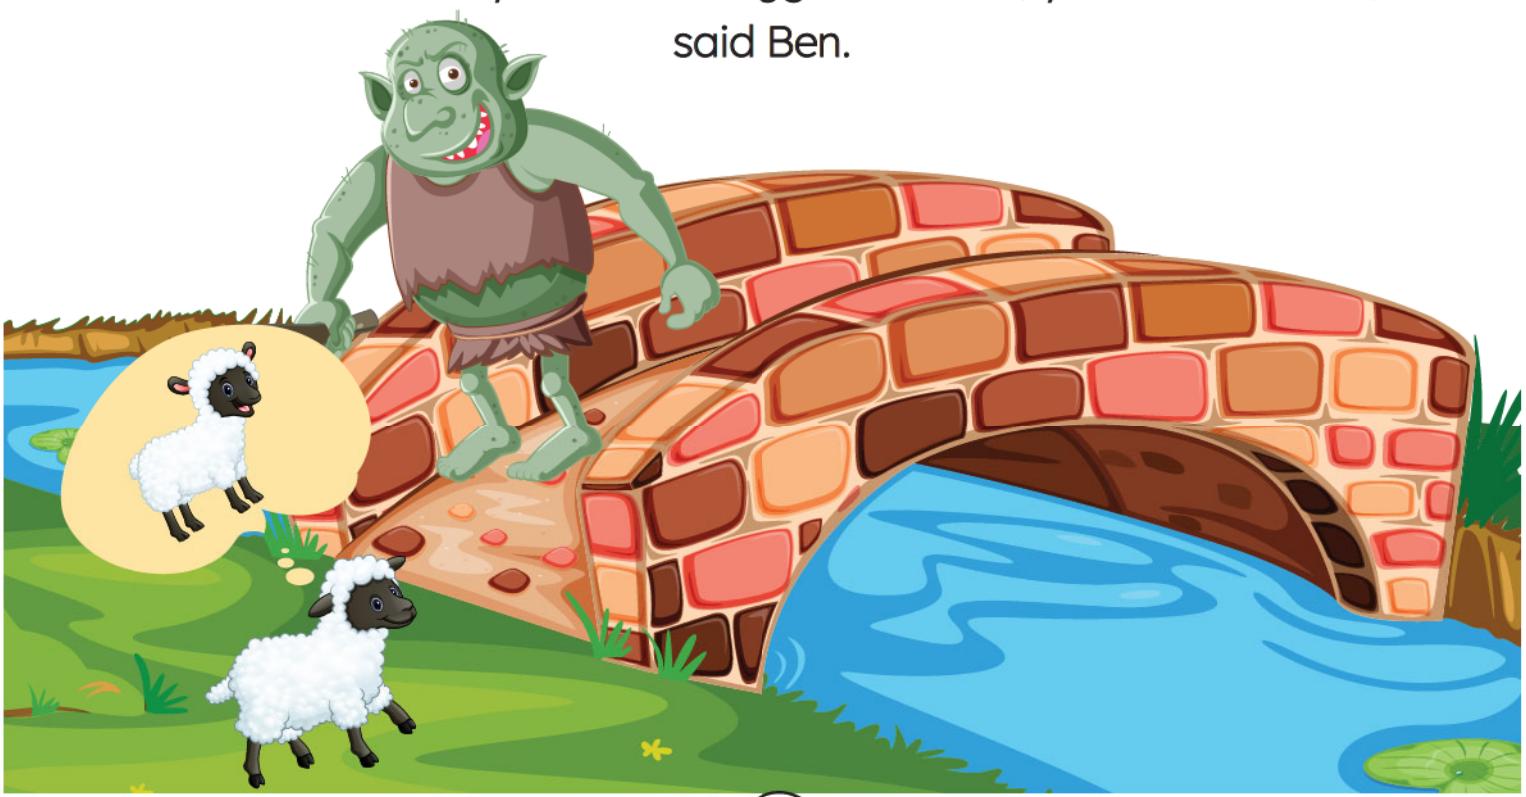

Ben, Jen and Ken wanted to eat the grass growing on the hill in the other side of the river. So, they decided to cross the river by walking across the bridge.

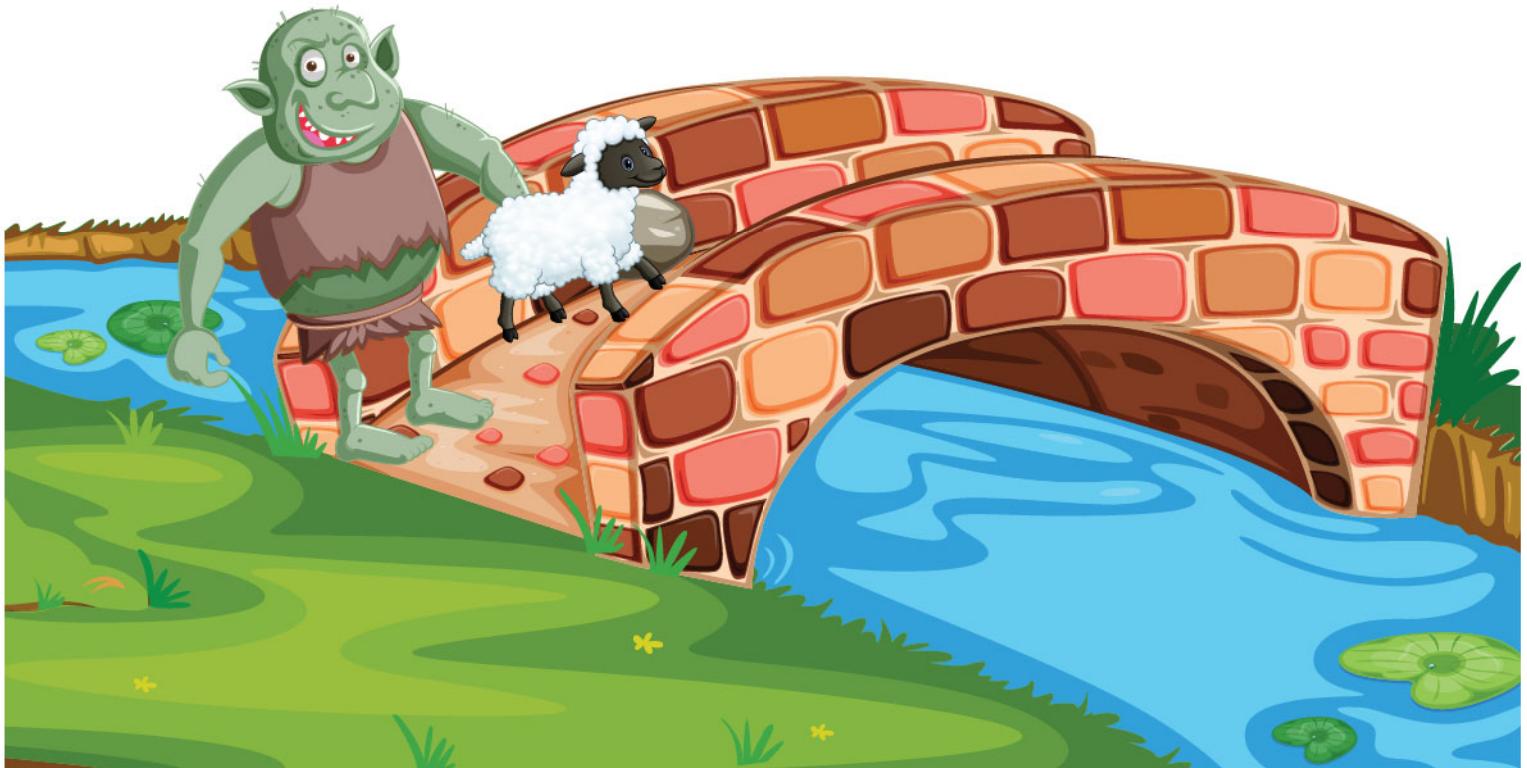

Ben, the youngest sheep, decided to cross the bridge first.
Suddenly, a big, bad monster climbed up the bridge.

"I am very hungry. So, I will eat you," the monster shouted at Ben,
"I am too small. My brother is bigger than me, you can eat him," said Ben.

The monster let Ben cross the bridge.

Jen came next. The monster said, "I am going to eat you". "It will be good if you wait for my brother. He is very, very big," said Jen. The monster let Jen go.

It was now Ken's turn to cross the bridge. He was the biggest among the three. When the monster saw Ken, he was very happy.

Just when the monster was going to eat Ken, He pushed the monster. The monster fell into the river and was swept away.

Ken crossed the bridge just like his brothers. At last, the three of them were together. They ate the grass on the hill and had a lot of fun.

Moral: Smart and brave actions can overcome big dangers.

Elephant and Friend

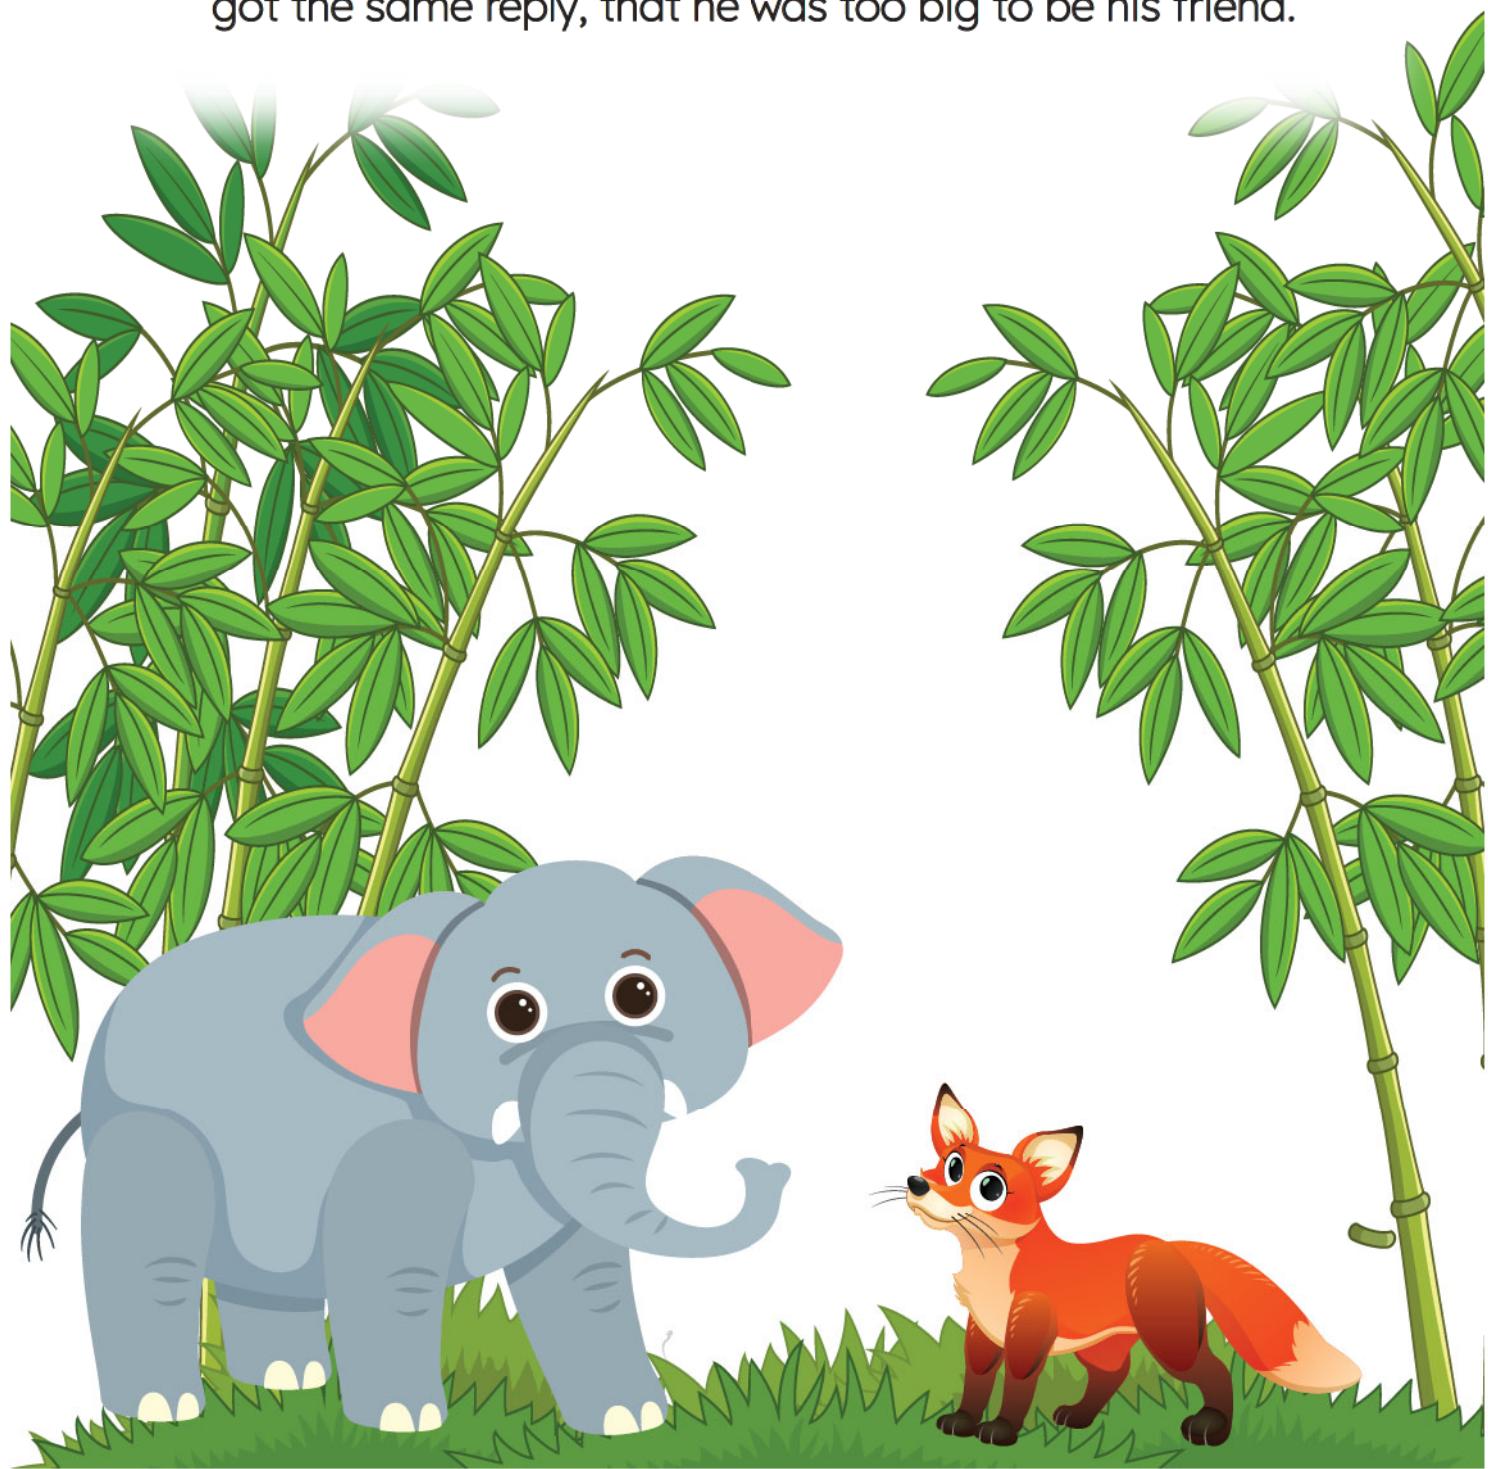

A lonely elephant was wandering the forest looking for friends. He came across a monkey and asked him, "Will you be my friend, monkey?" The monkey replied, "You are too big and cannot swing on trees as I do. So, I cannot be your friend". The elephant then came across a small rabbit and asked him if he could be his friend. The rabbit replied, "You are too big to fit inside my burrow. How can you be my friend?".

Next, the elephant met a tiny frog and asked if he could be his friend. The frog replied, "You are too big and heavy and cannot jump like me.

I am sorry, but we cannot be friends".

The elephant walked ahead and asked a fox, but he again got the same reply, that he was too big to be his friend.

The next day, all the animals in the forest were running here and there in fear. The elephant stopped a bear running by and asked him what was happening. The bear told him that a tiger had been attacking all the animals.

The elephant wanted to help the distressed animals and went to the tiger and said, "Please, sir, leave my friends alone. Do not kill them". The tiger didn't listen to him and asked the elephant to mind his own business. Seeing no other way to solve this problem, the elephant kicked the tiger hard and scared him away. He then went back to the other animals and told them what had happened. On hearing how the brave elephant saved their lives, the animals agreed in unison, "You are just the right size to be our dear friend".

Moral: Friends come in all shapes and sizes!

The Honest Woodcutter

Long ago, there lived a woodcutter in a small village. He was sincere in his work and very honest. Every day, he set out into the nearby forest to cut trees. He brought the woods back into the village and sold them to a merchant and earned his money.

He earned just about enough to make a living, but he was satisfied with his simple living.

One day, while cutting a tree near a river, his axe slipped out of his hand and fell into the river. The river was so deep, he could not even think to retrieve it on his own. He only had one axe which was gone into the river. He became a very worried thinking how he will be able to earn his living now! He was very sad and prayed to the God. He prayed sincerely so the God appeared in front of him and asked, "What is the problem, my son?"

The woodcutter explained the problem and requested the God to get his axe back. The God put his hand deep into the river and took out a silver axe and asked, “Is this your axe?”

The Woodcutter looked at the axe and said “No”. So the God put his hand back deep into the water again and showed a golden axe and asked, “Is this your axe?” The woodcutter looked at the axe and said “No”. The God said, “Take a look again Son, this is a very valuable golden axe, are you sure this is not yours?” The woodcutter said, “No, It’s not mine. I can’t cut the trees with a golden axe. It’s not useful for me”.

The God smiled and finally put his hand into the water again and took out his iron axe and asked, "Is this your axe?" To this, the woodcutter said, "Yes! This is mine! Thank you!" The God was very impressed with his honesty and gave him his iron axe and also the other two axes as a reward for his honesty.

Moral: "Always be honest. Honesty is always rewarded".

The Sun and the Cloud

One day the sun was shining brightly. It looked beautiful in the blue sky. All the birds were singing sweet songs to it.

Just then, a bad black cloud came. 'Little birds, sing for me too,' it said to the birds.

'No., you make rain and thunder. Your thunder scares us. Your rain makes our wings wet. Then we cannot fly. So we will not sing for you. We will sing only for the sun,' said the birds.

'Then I will hide the sun,' said the bad cloud. It was very big. It came in front of the sun and hid the sun. Now nobody could see the sun. The birds became very sad. They stopped singing.

'I will never let you shine again,' said the bad cloud.

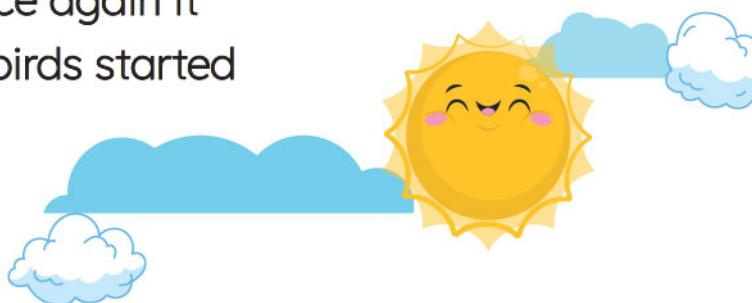

It stood there for a some time. Just then the Wind came running. It was running very fast. Just then the Wind came running. It was running very fast. All the clouds were scared of the wind. The wind was strong. It could throw them anywhere it liked. The bad black cloud saw the wind. It was scared too. It ran away at once.

The sun was no longer hidden. Once again it started shining brightly. And all the birds started singing again.

Moral: "Goodness and strength will always overcome negativity."
